Shukur is our mother's name and we have dedicated this restaurant in her name. Our mother brought us up lovingly and at meal times it was always an event for us. Mother's food was so delicious that we were always begging for seconds. The vast number of Indian restaurateurs cater for 'commercial' curries which are produced in quantity and not individual quality.

All our dishes are cooked the way that they are cooked at home and we have included a selection of our mum's favourites.

All dishes are carefully prepared whilst keeping the true taste of home cooking from the sub-continent. We have also included most of the favourites which were chosen by our curry clients. Cooking of any form is in an intricate art which is harnessed and mastered by a very few fortunate chefs in this field.

Food has evolved over decades through extensive hard work and research. Imagination and a gullible palate is needed for tasting and savouring the true testimony of this unique evangelical experience made possible only by philanthropic panache and distinctive competence. Balance a nutritional and healthy, informative menu is quite difficult in all cases as taste, allergies, nutritional requirements differ from individual to individual.

A compilation of a traditional menu fused with a very contemporary form of unique dining. A resounding resurrection of a unique cuisine declaring itself to be the zenith in the world of gastronomic culinary excellence.
